Ezoic makes it easy for publishers to optimize websites

Ezoic is an automated website testing company that enables publishers to evaluate and optimize ad placements and website layouts. Utilizing AdSense and DoubleClick Ad Exchange, Ezoic helps publishers maximize revenue and improve user experience across desktop, mobile and tablet.

An effective, simple way to improve user experience

Transforming user experience across publisher websites is a top priority for Ezoic. As Ezoic's Chief Customer Officer, John Cole, explains, "We discovered early on that the location of ads on the page had a large impact on page views. We can typically get a 50% improvement in revenue from testing new ad combinations and making them work better for the users. In the early days of the company, we bought websites to test out our theories and realized that you simply cannot improve monetization without tackling user experience."

Publishers may find manual ad testing too time-consuming and technically challenging. With Ezoic's automated testing platform, publishers can access a machine learning (A.I.) testing system that could help them increase revenue and improve user experience at the same time.

Case Study: SimplyPsychology.org

SimplyPsychology.org is a popular, go-to spot for students and teachers interested in psychology. According to an internal study commissioned by Ezoic, SimplyPsychology.org increased revenue by more than 400% and saw an 84% rise in time spent on site by optimizing their layout with Ezoic's testing platform.

Running a website is much harder than it used to be – publishers have to worry about mobile support, site speed, and usability while also earning an income. For many people and businesses, this is their livelihood, so there’s a lot on the line.” With approximately 65% of the traffic they see now on mobile, Ezoic has released several new applications that help publishers organize, monetize, and improve mobile websites.

Google certification builds trust

As a partner in Google’s Certified Publishing Partner program, Ezoic is now able to help even more publishers optimize websites, increase revenue, and improve user experience. Cole explains, “Being a Google Certified Publishing Partner is great for our business. Both long-standing publishers and those new to operating a site see the Google badge and know that they are dealing with a reputable company.”
